She Lives . . .

I cannot think and will not say
That she is dead, she is just away.
With a cheery smile and wave of the hand,
She has wandered into that better land,
And left us thinking how wondrous fair,
It must be, since she lingers there.

And you, Oh, you who so fondly yearn
For the welcome step and the glad return,
Think of her living on, as dear
In the land of there as the land of here;
Think of her living on, I say,
She is not dead, she is just away.

Nor is she away from the better part;
Away from the eye, but not the heart;
And she lingers near to sooth our pain.
And teach us that life and death are gain;
And she waits on that bright eternal shore
For the hand-clasp of love and life once more.
